Talk

When you ask your child a question, give them at least 30 seconds to process what you've said to them and to figure out how they want to respond to you.

Read

Point out and read the signs that you see with your child. Talk about what the sign says and what it means or how it helps us know what to do.

Play

Encourage your child to move (crawl, walk, run, dance, skip, jump, stomp, and clap). Muscle control and coordination are essential for learning and brain development.

Sing

Have special songs that you sing with your child for certain activities during their day. Wake up songs, clean up songs, bath time songs, and bed time songs.

Write

Playdoughs, slimes, and puttys strengthen the fine motor muscles in your child's hands and fingers in addition to providing a tactile experience.
