Talk

Talk about the current season of the year with your child. Ask them to tell you about the things they can do or can't do in spring, summer, fall, and winter.

Read

Books are great for introducing new vocabulary words that your child might not hear in daily conversation. Be sure to explain what the new words mean.

Play

Blow bubbles with your child. Not only are bubbles fun to chase and catch, but blowing bubbles also helps to strengthen the facial muscles we use when speaking.

Sing

Use bells, shakers and other instruments (either purchased or home made) to help identify rhythms and develop muscle coordination.

Write

Create a family mail box to exchange drawings and letters with your child.
